SCHOOL OF NURSING SCIENCES

THE DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF NURSING SCIENCES,
DR PATRICIA KATOWA-MUKWATO, RN, BScN, MScN, PhD,
SHALL PRESENT TO THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES
FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN MIDWIFERY

Maureen Malumbe Masumo, RN, RM, BSCN, MSCN

TITLE OF THESIS: Neonatal Intensive Care Unit Environmental Stressors: Towards Developing a Stress Alleviating Model for Mothers Nursing Sick Neonates in Lusaka in Zambia

Maureen Malumbe Masumo was born on 26 September 1973 in Choma district. She did her Primary School at Naleza Primary School in Mazabuka district and completed her secondary school education at St. Mary's Secondary School, in Maramba in 1991. She holds a Diploma in Nursing from Kitwe School of Nursing, an Advanced Diploma in Midwifery from Ndola School of Midwifery, a Bachelor of Science in Nursing and a Master of Science in Nursing (Maternal and Child Health) from the University of Zambia.

As a Nurse and Midwife, Maureen worked at Kalomo District Hospital and Kalomo District Health Office as Coordinator of Maternal and Child Health Services. She joined the University of Zambia in 2007 as a Staff Development Fellow and in 2009, upon completion of her master's degree, she was appointed as a lecturer, a position she holds to date.

In 2015, Maureen was awarded a scholarship by the NORHED project to pursue a doctorate degree. She enrolled at the University of Zambia to pursue a doctorate degree.

Her thesis investigated Neonatal Intensive Care Unit Environmental stressors and associated factors among the mothers who were nursing babies at the Women and New-born Hospital of the University Teaching Hospital. The major findings of her study established that the mothers are moderately stressed and the most stressful NICU environmental stressors were infant appearance and behaviour and parent-infant relationship. Birth weight and type of baby feeding were statistically associated with maternal stress. Additionally, in her study, she developed a Maternal Stress Alleviation Model proposed for use by the nursing staff. These findings have significant implications for policymakers and nursing staff in enhancing the quality of care in NICU.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

THE DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION,
DR BENTRY NKHATA, ADV. DIPLOMA, BAED, MA, PhD,
SHALL PRESENT TO THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES
FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN RELIGIOUS STUDIES

Nelly Mwale, BAED, MeDRS

TITLE OF THESIS: Religion and Higher Education: An Interpretivist Inquiry into the Role of the Catholic Church in the Provision of University Education in Zambia, 1990-2020.

Nelly Mwale was born on 12 June 1984 in Chipata. She did her primary education at Mnoro and Mwami primary schools and completed her secondary education at St. Monica's Secondary School in Chipata in 2001. In 2008, she obtained a Bachelor of Arts with Education Degree from the University of Zambia.

She was later awarded a Staff Development Fellowship (SDF) by the University of Zambia to pursue a Master of Education in Religious Studies. Upon completion of her master's degree, she was appointed as a lecturer in the Department of Religious Studies at the University of Zambia, a position she currently holds.

In 2015, began to pursue her PhD in Religious Studies at the University of Zambia.

Nelly's thesis investigated the role of religion in the provision of university education in Zambia with specific reference to the Catholic Church. Her study not only inquired into the history, roles and experiences of the Church in the sector but also modelled Catholic provision of university education.

The major findings showed that the Catholic Church's provision of university education was an expansion of the Zambian Catholic education system and mission, and that the roles of the Church revolved around serving society, promoting the Catholic ideals on education and fostering her mission.

The study indicated that the Church tapped into her religious ideas, practices, organisation and experiences in order to fulfil her roles. The study also revealed that the model of the Church's provision of university education was an adaptation of the roles of Private Higher Education institutions and religious resources.

The study showed that the constructive use of religion was a resource for contributing towards addressing the demand for university education in the country. The study, theoretically and empirically, contributed to scholarship by extending the field of religion and education to higher education thereby constructing a model of church provision of university education in Zambia.

Kasonde Mundende, Cert.Prim. Teach, CDEP, Sec. Sch.Dip, BAEd, MED, MIDT.

TITLE OF THESIS: Exploring ‘Equal Opportunity’ in the Teaching and Learning of Geography in Selected Senior Secondary Schools of Kabwe District, Zambia

Kasonde Mundende was born on 5 March 1964 in Mporokoso district. He did his primary school at Chiwala and Chimpempe Mission Schools in Mporokoso and Kawambwa districts. He then did his secondary school education at Samfya and Mungwi secondary schools. In 1986, he obtained a Primary School Teacher’s Certificate from David Livingstone Teacher’s College and a Secondary Teachers’ Diploma from Copperbelt Teacher’s College in 1993. He then obtained a Bachelor of Arts with Education Degree in 2003 and a Master of Education in Geography Education in 2008 from the University of Zambia.

Currently, he is a lecturer at the University of Zambia, where he teaches Geography.

Kasonde’s PhD study investigated ‘equal opportunity’ provision in the teaching and learning of geography. This study was triggered by consistent under-achievement by learners at School Certificate level for a period of eight years from 2010 to 2017.

The study found that home, school and peer or social environments’ characteristics contributed to the under-achievement in the teaching and learning of geography in senior secondary schools of Kabwe district. The study further established that ‘equal opportunity’ in the teaching and learning of geography in the selected senior secondary schools of Kabwe district did not fully exist. The study also showed that individualised teacher-learner interaction was not fully attained in the teaching and learning of geography in senior secondary schools of Kabwe district.

The study concluded that ‘equal opportunity’ provision in the teaching and learning of geography in the senior secondary schools of Kabwe district was not fully implemented resulting in persistent under-achievement among the learners.

The study, therefore, recommends that the Ministry of General Education (MoGE) should recruit more qualified teachers of geography to lower the teacher-learner ratio. The MoGE should also evaluate the 1996 Educational Policy (Educating Our Future) Document to satisfy the demands of the current situations in the Zambian education system, especially on orphans and vulnerable children (OVC). Furthermore, the study recommended that the MoGE using its standard officers, and school administrators should ensure that individualised teacher-learner attention is implemented in every lesson by all teachers through effective monitoring and evaluation so that no learner is left behind. This may actualise ‘equal opportunity’ as enshrined in the Seventh National Development Plan and the Sustainable Development Goal Number 4, which emphasise the provision of equal opportunity for better living.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN EDUCATIONAL ADMINISTRATION

Peggy Nsama, Dip.Mathematics,BEDMas, Med Ed Admin

TITLE OF THESIS: An Empirical Mixed Method Study on Investment in Information and Communication Technology Architecture in Zambia’s Secondary Schools for Quality Education: Examining Infrastructure, Policy and Future Prospects

Peggy Nsama was born in Kitwe district of the Copperbelt Province of Zambia. She did her primary education at Kalewa Primary School and secondary education at Kalonga Secondary School. She then did her Secondary Teachers Diploma in Mathematics at the Copperbelt Secondary Teachers College, after which she became a teacher of Mathematics in the Ministry of Education. She later enrolled at the University of Zambia, where she obtained a Bachelors Degree in Mathematics in 2004.

Upon completion of her bachelors degree, she immediately enrolled for her Masters Degree in Educational Administration, at the University of Zambia, where she specialised in Economics of Education. Later, Peggy enrolled as a PhD student at the University of Zambia. In 2008, she was employed as full time lecturer, a position she still holds.

Peggy's thesis was titled; An Empirical Mixed Method Study on Investment in Information and Communication Technology Architecture in Zambia's Secondary Schools for Quality Education: Examining Infrastructure, Policy and Future Prospects. The study focused on four (4) provinces of Zambia namely; Lusaka, Eastern, Luapula and Copperbelt, where she selected three (3) districts from each province.

The major findings of the study were that there was a lack of authentic policy in ICT in education. The currently used policy is a draft which had not been gazetted. Besides that, the Government of Zambia did not have a set minimum and ideal ICT standard for secondary schools, which could be used as a reference for investment in ICT infrastructure in education. Concerning government and other stakeholders' investment in ICT in education, the findings suggest that there was a low investment by both parties, which resulted in inadequate facilities in schools.

The thesis established significant challenges in ICT, among others, included load shedding of power in most schools. In which case, most of them did not have alternative power sources. Apart from that, inadequate infrastructure which compromised the input, process and output to education, not having specialised computer laboratories and instead, some schools converted classrooms as computer laboratories, hence, affecting the life span of the facilities, especially computers. It was also established that the country did not have an investment criteria and strategy in ICT for schools and, therefore, could not monitor or attract specific support from the other strategic stakeholders and Cooperating Partners.

Based on the findings and conclusions, the following recommendations were made: The Ministry of Education has a great responsibility in creating a conducive environment so as to strengthen its partnership with other stakeholders in investing in ICT in schools. In this regard, Peggy, proposed an investment framework in ICT (ICTCIF), under the PPP approach (BOT Model), to invest in ICT in education, which she encourages the Ministry of Education, with support from other stakeholders, to test and assess its potential benefit to the Zambian education system.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN SOCIOLOGY OF EDUCATION

Dominic Yumba, Cert. Primary, Dip. Art & Design, BAED, MED

TITLE OF THESIS: Decentrasation and Quality Education in Selected Community Schools in Mufulira and Kitwe Districts on the Copperbelt Province in Zambia

Dominic Yumba was born in 1960 in Lusaka. He did his primary school at Machona Primary School in 1970, and his secondary school at Mindolo Secondary School in 1982. In 1986, he went to Solwezi Teacher Training College (now Solwezi College of Education College) and graduated with a Certificate in Primary Methods. In 1990, he went to Evelyn Hone College of Applied Arts and Commerce and upon completion of his three year course, he was awarded a Diploma in Art and Design. In 2000, Dominic was awarded a Bachelor of Education Degree in Primary Education and in 2010, he was awarded a Master's Degree in Sociology of Education.

Dominic's PhD study set out to investigate decentralisation and quality education in community schools in Mufulira and Kitwe districts using Right-Based Approach to education; and School-Family-Community Partnership Model by Joyce Epstein. The findings of the study showed that there were three types of curriculum used in community schools namely; the Zambian Curriculum of 2000, the Skills, Participation, Access to Relevant Knowledge Curriculum of 1996, and the Revised Curriculum of 2013. The majority of the teachers, that is 89 per cent, indicated that they used revised curriculum of 2013. An examination of the Grade 7 results from community school examination centres, for the period 2014 to 2017, showed that the performance of pupils between those in the studied school and the government schools were similar.

The findings also showed that resource mobilisation in community schools was a big challenge because community schools were non-profitmaking organisations. Resources were mobilised mainly from school fees; donations from cooperating partners especially the United States Agency for International Development and The Flemish Association for Development Cooperation and Technical Assistance; community contributions; school fundraising ventures and the government. The structure for resource mobilisation and utilisation was the Parents Community School committees.

Another finding was that community schools were monitored and evaluated by Resource Coordinators and senior teachers of nearby schools. Out of 45 schools, the District Education Standards Officers monitored only twelve schools. Additionally, the study showed that community schools enjoyed some opportunities in the training of teachers in form of short pedagogical courses organised by NGOs and cooperating partners through the government.

This study found that community school pupils enjoyed the flexibility offered by these schools in terms of payment of schools fees, and school uniform policy. Administrative challenges the schools faced were inadequate finances, inadequate infrastructure and learning and teaching materials, and lack of trained teachers.

The study concluded that, community schools were organised and managed by Parents Community School Committees thereby affording the school managers an opportunity to innovate on activities responsive to their needs. Monitoring of community schools though crucial to ensuring quality education, was carried out by non-monitoring and evaluation specialists.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN EDUCATIONAL ADMINISTRATION AND POLICY STUDIES

Trinity Rose Chikwanda, DipEd, BAED, MIED

TITLE OF THESIS: An Empirical Examination of Leadership Styles' Contribution Towards the Creation of Conducive Teaching and Learning Environments in Selected Colleges of Education in Zambia

Sr. Trinity Rose Chikwanda was born on 3 July 1964 in Mpika district. She attended primary and secondary school in Chilonga and Lwitikila Girls Secondary School in Mpika. She obtained a Secondary Diploma in Education at Nkrumah Teachers College in 1988 and a bachelor's degree from Catholic University of Eastern Africa (CUEA) in Nairobi, Kenya in 1996. She also obtained a Master's Degree in International Education and Development at Oslo University College in Norway in 2010. She is currently a lecturer at Kwame Nkrumah University in Kabwe.

In October 2014, Sr. Chikwanda enrolled for a PhD at the University of Zambia to pursue Educational Administration and Policy Studies. Her study investigated four leadership styles namely; autocratic, democratic, laissez-faire and instructional to determine their contributions towards the creation of conducive teaching and learning environments in Colleges of Education in Zambia.

The findings showed that there is a strong correlation between leadership styles and conducive environment. However, the study revealed that the application of the four leadership styles in Colleges of Education in Zambia has not contributed to the creation of conducive environments but poor to moderate environments, which has had negative implications on the effective teaching and learning in these institutions. The predominant use of autocratic leadership style by college principals has overshadowed the creation of conducive teaching and learning environments expected to exist in colleges.

Based on the findings, the study, therefore, suggests that principals, as leaders of colleges should adopt hybrid leadership style which requires the blending of masculinity and femininity leadership traits to alleviate the current leadership challenges being experienced in these institutions of learning. It also proposes the adoption of the VDCITTR leadership framework developed in this study.

SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

THE DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE,
PROF. KING S. NALUBAMBA, BVM, MSc, PhD,
SHALL PRESENT TO THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES
FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (MICROBIOLOGY)

Bruno Stephen July Phiri, BVM, MSc

TITLE OF THESIS: *Milk hygiene assessment and Characterisation of Staphylococcus aureus Associated with the Dairy Value Chain in Western, Lusaka and Southern Provinces of Zambia*

Phiri Bruno S.J. was born on 16 June 1972 in Chikoti Village in Katete district. He did his primary school education at Tosa Primary School, in 1980 and Secondary School at Chadiza Secondary School in 1991. In 1993, he enrolled at the University of Zambia, to pursue a degree in Veterinary Medicine. In 2009, he enrolled at the University of Zambia again for a 2-year Master of Science in Veterinary Medicine by research. In 2015, he enrolled at the University of Zambia to study for a PhD in Microbiology.

In his research, he documented that Staphylococcus aureus strains found in the dairy value chain in Western, Lusaka and Southern provinces belong to 36 spa types and out of these, seven (7) were novel types detected mainly in milk which have not been found anywhere in the world to date. Milk, is widely contaminated with S. aureus and deficiency in hygiene was common in all the three study provinces. There is also diversity and differences in the distribution and patterns of virulence, enterotoxin and antibiotic resistance genes. The predominant antimicrobial resistance in isolates included penicillin (41.7%), tetracycline (33.3 %) and trimethoprim (27.8 %) and were multi-drug resistant (MDR) (19.4%). In conclusion, the research findings of virulent, enterotoxigenic and multi-drug resistant Staphylococcus aureus strains along the dairy value chain indicate a serious and potential public health threat as the dairy value chain could be one of the pathways of transmission to humans.

SCHOOL OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

THE DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF HUMANITIES AND SCIENCES, PROF. JACOB S. MALUNGO, BA, MA, PhD, SHALL PRESENT TO THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN PSYCHOLOGY

Barnabas Simatende, BA, MDIV, MA

TITLE OF THESIS: Identifying Indigenous Conceptions and Assessment Criteria of Intelligence for Integration into Zambia School Curriculum

Barnabas Simatende was born on 24 August 1976 in Siavonga district of Southern Province. He did his primary school education at Lukulu Basic School in Lukulu, in Western Province and secondary education at St. Columba's Secondary School. Upon completion of his secondary school, he joined the Catholic Seminary and studied Philosophy at St. Joseph Theological Institute in South Africa and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy, in 2002. Pursuant to his seminary studies, in 2004, he proceeded to USA, San Antonio - Texas where he studied Theology at Oblate School of Theology and graduated with a Master of Divinity in 2008.

In 2011, he registered at the University of Zambia (UNZA) for a master's programme in Child and Adolescent Psychology and successfully graduated with a Master's of Arts in Child and Adolescent Psychology in 2013. In 2015, he registered for a PhD programme in the same field at the University of Zambia.

Barnabas' PhD research revealed that there were certain commonalities across the seven major language groups of Zambia that were investigated. Each cultural belief system specified characteristics of intelligence that were necessary for the development of a child and the wellbeing of society. These characteristics of intelligence were nurtured through indigenous childcare practices. This research proposed that relevant indigenous childcare practices associated with developing psychosocial skills among children should be included in the Early Childhood Education (ECE) curriculum to improve student retention in learning centers and success in higher levels of education.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (Linguistic Science)

Clare Mwiinga, BA Ed, MA (Gender Studies), MA (Linguistic Science)

TITLE OF THESIS: A Rhetoric Analysis of the 2016 Presidential Election Campaign Discourse in Zambia with Reference to One Opposition Candidate

Clare Mwiinga was born on 2 October 1973 in Choma district. She did her primary education at Mandala Primary School in Choma, and then went to St. Mary's Secondary School in Livingstone where she completed her secondary school education in 1991. She obtained a Bachelor of Arts with Education Degree from the University of Zambia in 1998.

In 2005, she obtained a Master of Arts Degree in Gender Studies from the University of Zambia, and in 2015, she obtained a Master of Arts in Linguistic Science from the University of Zambia. In 2016, she enrolled for a Doctor of Philosophy in Linguistic Science at the University of Zambia. She is currently a lecturer in the Department of Literature and Languages at Chalimbana University.

Clare's thesis investigated the campaign discourse of one opposition candidate in the 2016 presidential elections in Zambia with a view of showing how rhetorical devices were employed by the candidate in order to achieve persuasion in his campaign discourse.

The results of the study revealed that the candidate under investigation employed various rhetorical devices which included aesthetic expressions, syntactic elements and code-switching to woo support of the electorate and that it mattered how politicians presented what they said when campaigning. It was established that the rhetorical theory was specifically interested in the skill employed in communication in order for the rhetor to convince the audience of his or her own standpoint and spelled out detailed resources of rhetoric which are ethos, pathos, logos and kairos. In order to achieve persuasion, these different appeals to effective communication, should be exploited according to the context, the speaker, type of audience, subject matter and its timeliness.

Furthermore, the political candidate under examination, through the use of rhetorical devices, leaned on the extremely polarised view of us versus them, where he belonged to the positively represented in-group and the opposing group was firmly placed in the out-group, derisively whenever possible. This polarisation gave the political candidate understudy an advantage over his opponents in terms of employment of linguistic political persuasion strategies.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH SCIENCES

THE ACTING DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF HEALTH SCIENCES, DR SODY M. MUNSAKA, BSc, MSc, PhD, SHALL PRESENT TO
THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN BIOMEDICAL SCIENCES

Katayi Mwila-Kazimbaya

TITLE OF THESIS: Breast Milk Components and their Contribution to Rotavirus Vaccine Seroconversion in Zambia Infants Born to HIV-Positive and HIV-Negative Mothers

Katayi Mwila-Kazimbaya was born on 4 of July 1985 in Melton England. She did her primary and secondary school at Lechwe Education Trust in Kitwe. Thereafter, she moved to the Rhodes University in Eastern Cape, South Africa to complete her bachelor's degree in 2008; triple majoring in Biochemistry, Computer Science and Management. She then proceeded to do her Bachelor of Science Honours followed by a Master of Science in Biochemistry in 2011, at the Rhodes University. She joined the University of Zambia as a lecturer in the School of Natural Sciences, and then enrolled for a PhD at the University of Zambia in 2017.

To understand the reduced efficacy of the rotavirus vaccine, Katayi's PhD work focused on investigating the effect of non-immunological breastmilk components on an infant's ability to successfully respond (or seroconvert) to rotavirus vaccination. Katayi's findings indicated that whole breastmilk was able to successfully inhibit viral replication in MA104 cells, whilst there was lesser inhibition in other breastmilk fractions such as IgG and IgA. These findings would indicate that when children are vaccinated, the various components of breastmilk would result in the inhibition of the virus and thus, not allow the infant to successfully respond (or seroconvert) to the oral rotavirus vaccine.

INSTITUTE OF DISTANCE EDUCATION

THE DIRECTOR OF INSTITUTE OF DISTANCE EDUCATION,
PROF. BONIFACE NAMANGALA, BVetMed, MSc, PhD,
SHALL PRESENT TO THE CHANCELLOR CANDIDATES
FOR THE AWARD OF:

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Patrick Mubanga, Dip.WaterEng, BEng, MScEng, Dip.Proj.Mgt.

TITLE OF THESIS: The Relationship between Academic Performance of Grade Seven Pupils from Electrified and Non-Electrified Homes at Mubanga – Ndhlovu Primary School, Chibombo District, Zambia

Patrick Mubanga was born on 21 October 1971. He did his primary school education at Nkambo Primary School in Luanshya, junior secondary school at Mpatamato Secondary School in Luanshya and his senior secondary school at Roan Antelope Boys Secondary School in Luanshya district.

In 1994, he obtained a Diploma in Water Engineering at the Natural Resources Development College (NRDC). In 2005, he obtained a Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Zambia then a Master's Degree in Sustainable Energy Engineering from KTH in Sweden in 2013. In 2015, he obtained a Diploma in Project Management from the Zambia Centre for Accountancy Studies (ZCAS).

In 2010, Patrick joined the Rural Electrification Authority (REA) where he currently works as Director-Engineering Services.

Patrick's PhD thesis investigated the relationship between Academic Performance of Grade Seven Pupils from Electrified and Non-Electrified Homes at Mubanga – Ndhlovu Primary School, in Chibombo district of Zambia. The study applied quantitative approach and used correlational research design. Data was analysed using statistical tools such as, Chi-Square, Bivariate and Multivariate logistical regression. The statistical conclusion regarding the relationship between academic performance and pupils from electrified and non-electrified homes, used confidence level of 95 per cent to reject the null hypothesis. Therefore, though the results indicated a non-significant relationship difference between pupils from electrified homes and those from non-electrified, cumulative scores showed that those from electrified homes passed the mock examinations more than their counterparts from non-electrified homes.

Additionally, results revealed that more pupils from electrified homes had a higher pass rate fifty-seven (43.5%), compared to those from non-electrified homes with forty-two (44.2%).

The study concluded that electricity is a contributor to academic performance. Based on this conclusion, the study recommends that more homes should be electrified and that pupils should be encouraged to listen to educational programmes on the radio. This study, therefore, is relevant to the field of educational psychology in highlighting the importance of electricity as one of the factors among many others in academic performance of pupils.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Brian Kapotwe, Cert.Proj.Mgt., Dip.SW, BSc, MSc. EcoPA

TITLE OF THESIS: Economic Growth Slow Downs and the Middle-Income Trap: The Case of the Zambian Economy

Brian Kapotwe was born on 11 May 1985. He did his primary school at Livingstone Primary School in Livingstone, junior secondary school at Monze Basic School, and senior secondary school at Monze Secondary School in Monze.

In 2007, he obtained a Diploma in Social Work from Mulungushi University and then a Certificate in Project Management from the Zambian Open University in 2009. He then acquired a Bachelor of Science Degree and a Master of Science in Economics and Policy Analysis from Cavendish University in 2011 and 2014 respectively.

Brian is currently working at the United Nations' International Fund for Agriculture Development (IFAD) as Country Programme Officer.

Brian's PhD explored the factors leading to economic growth slow down for middle-income countries that would result in a Middle Income Trap (MIT). The study analysed whether Zambia as a newly classified lower middle-income country, was affected by the MIT and if so, how it could avoid falling in the trap. The study employed Descriptive and Ex-Facto Research Design while Grander Causality was used to analyse the results. The study revealed that Zambia was in MIT due to lack of sustained economic growth especially after attaining lower middle-income status in 2010. Zambia's GDP per capita growth rate was strongly affected by Agriculture's share in GDP.

The study also revealed that the agriculture sector was key to overcoming the problem of the MIT in Zambia. In order to avoid falling deep in the MIT and to sustain growth at middle-income level, the government should strengthen market oriented economic governance, identify new growth drivers at middle-income level, improve agricultural total factor productivity and increase investment in agriculture.

This study, therefore, is relevant and makes a significant contribution to the existing body of knowledge in the field of Agricultural Economics.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Omedy Mweene, Dip.SW., BA, Postgraduate Dip.Tech, MA, MPhil, MSc.Proj.Mgt., PhD

TITLE OF THESIS: Construction of Interpersonal Helping Behaviours Exhibited Among Pirate Taxi Drivers: An Embedded Mixed Methods Design

Omedy Mweene was born on 16 April 1985 in Mumbwa district. He did his primary school education at Lutale Primary School, junior secondary school at Kabulwebulwe Junior Secondary School and his senior secondary school at Mumbwa Secondary School in Mumbwa district.

In 2008, Omedy graduated from the University of Zambia with a Diploma in Social Work. He later enrolled for a Bachelor's Degree in Social Work Practice and Development Studies at the University of Africa in 2014. Additionally, Omedy acquired three master's degrees in sociology and demography, project management and sociology.

Omedy's PhD thesis explored the construction of interpersonal helping behaviours exhibited among pirate taxi drivers in the city of Lusaka using an embedded mixed methods design.

Findings showed that drivers exhibited more egoistic helping behaviours and less altruistic helping behaviour. Therefore, the study noted the testing of egoistic and altruistic helping behaviour theories among pirate taxi drivers and the profiling type of help rendered by pirate taxi drivers amongst themselves.

This study, therefore, is relevant to the field of sociology in highlighting the importance of egoistic and altruistic helping behaviours.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN EPIDEMIOLOGY

Tendai Munthali Synopsis Dip.Clinical Medicine, BA, MPH

TITLE OF THESIS: Childhood HIV in Zambia

Tendai Munthali was born on 6 February 1983. She did her primary school at Lotus Basic School in 1995. In 1996, she went to Kamwala High School and completed secondary education in 2000. She then attended Chainama College of Health Sciences, and graduated as a Clinical Officer General in 2004. In 2005, she enrolled at the University of Zambia and obtained a Bachelor of Arts. She then enrolled for a Master of Public Health at the University of Zambia in 2012.

In 2016, Tendai enrolled at the University of Zambia for a PhD. She currently works as HIV Officer at the Ministry of Health.

Tendai's PhD research findings indicated that the time from testing to Antiretroviral therapy (ART) initiation reduced from a median of 17 days in 2004 to 2006, to just one day in 2016 to 2017, showing that the test and treat policy was effective. The study also indicated that children living with HIV were surviving more than 10 years on ART validating the need for more investment in pediatric ART. Additionally, the study revealed that children aged between five and fifteen years took more time to be initiated on ART compared to children under five years. The study advocated for more efforts to reach this age groups if the country is to reach HIV epidemic control by 2035.

Kangwa Ichengelo Mulenga Muma, BScHB (UNZA), MBChB (UNZA), M.MED

TITLE OF THESIS: Determinants of Primary Open Angle Glaucoma in Zambia: The Role of Genetics and Central Corneal Thickness

Kangwa Ichengelo Mulenga Muma was born in Ndola. He did his primary school at Lubuto Primary School and his secondary school at St. Edmund's Secondary School in Mazabuka in 1993. In 1999, he obtained a Bachelor of Science in Human Biology from the University of Zambia. He then proceeded with his studies at the University of Zambia where he obtained a Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery in 2002. In 2004, he was awarded a scholarship from the Lions of Bavaria, German, to pursue a Master's Degree in Ophthalmology at the University of Nairobi in Kenya which he completed in 2007.

Kangwa is currently the National Eye Health Coordinator at the Ministry of Health and Consultant

Ophthalmologist at the University Teaching Hospitals – Eye Hospital in Lusaka, Zambia.

Kangwa's PhD thesis set out to explore 'Determinants of Primary Open Angle Glaucoma in Zambia: The Role of Genetics and Central Corneal Thickness' at the University Teaching Hospitals – Eye Hospital, Lusaka Eye Hospital and the Kitwe Teaching Eye Hospital. The study focused on investigating the Primary Open Angle Glaucoma (POAG) epidemiology, role of genetics and Central Corneal Thickness (CCT) in the Zambian black population with interest placed on evaluating the risk factors, determinants, magnitude and the role of myocilin gene mutations. It also evaluated the pattern and distribution of Central Corneal Thickness and its relationship with intraocular pressure (IOP), Visual Fields (VF) parametres and optic disc parametres among Zambian POAG.

The study demonstrated an early onset and noteworthy prevalence of POAG. The study revealed a high presence of myocilin mutations on gene locus GLC1A in a Zambian black population. Positive family history was associated with POAG and the presence of MYOC mutations. The silent myocilin mutations seemed to break their silence as revealed by the very active family history of POAG, a high frequency of myocilin mutations and their direct association with a positive family history of POAG. The study reported a high genetically associated prevalence of POAG in the study population. In general, the high prevalence of POAG in this population suggests the need to set up a functional surveillance system that combines both community and facility-based approaches to profile the epidemiology of glaucoma continuously as an indicator to inform and shape existing primary preventive ophthalmological strategies. Setting up such a surveillance system calls for additional and targeted investment in preventive eye health care in Zambia.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Brian Muyunda

TITLE OF THESIS: Evaluating the Effectiveness of Option B+ as a New Strategy in Prevention of Mother-to-Child Transmission of HIV among Positive Pregnant and Breastfeeding Women in Zambia

Brian Muyunda was born on 22 December 1982 in Lusaka. He attended primary school at Chawama Primary School and junior secondary school at Libala Secondary School in Lusaka in 1997 and 1999 respectively. He attended senior secondary school at David Kaunda National Technical High School and Libala Secondary School in Lusaka. He then obtained a Bachelor of Science Degree in Mathematics and Statistics from the University of Zambia, in 2009. He later obtained a Master of Science Degree in Epidemiology and Biostatistics from the University of Zambia, in 2015.

Currently, Brian works under the US Embassy Centres for Disease Control and Prevention as a Public Health Specialist.

His PhD thesis was titled, ‘Evaluating the Effectiveness of Option B+ as a New Strategy in Prevention of Mother-to-Child Transmission of HIV among Positive Pregnant and Breastfeeding Women in Zambia.’

The key findings of the study were that infants exposed to HIV positive mothers on Option B+ (Lifelong ART) had 50 per cent reduced risk of getting infected with HIV compared to those exposed to mothers on Option A and/or B. HIV positive pregnant women with assisted delivery had three times the risk of exposing their infants to HIV compared with those with normal delivery. Women with higher educational level, higher wealth index and aged 20 to 34 years were more likely to effectively utilise HIV services in ANC and deliver from a health facility, thereby reducing the risk of exposing their babies to HIV, compared to their counterparts.
